

BEM 101 – Selected Topics in BEM: Economics of Sustainable development. 9 units (3-0-6). This course provides an understanding of challenges in reducing humanity's impact on the environment and implementing transition to carbon neutrality. The course covers both conceptual topics and recent and current applications. Included are studies on climate attitudes and the determinants of individual sustainability choice, contracting and managerial Incentives for firm-level climate action, and international cooperation on climate change. Instructor: Singh