Shakespeare's Career: Tragedies and Tragicomedies
Spring 2015
George Pigman

Requirements and Procedures

By the morning of each class you must send me by email (gwp@hss.caltech.edu) a question on the reading. I will choose one of the questions for a short quiz, which will take place at the beginning of class.

You must write two papers, each approximately 2000 words long. The first is due January 30 at 11:59 p.m., and the second, June 10 at 5 p.m. The first paper must be about Shakespeare's use of his source, "A Moorish Captain," the seventh novella of the third decade of Giraldi Cinthio's Hecatommithi (1565) in Othello. If you have written a paper on Shakespeare's use of his sources in one of his history plays, you may propose your own topic on Titus Andronicus, Hamlet, Troilus and Cressida, or Othello by January 23. A topic for the second paper will be assigned, although I encourage you to choose your own. If you do choose one, you must send me a short paragraph stating your thesis or at least describing your topic a week before the paper is due. You need to follow the MLA citation style (<http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/>), although you do not need to use secondary sources. Please send me the papers as email attachments (Microsoft Word, OpenOffice/LibreOffice, or \LaTeX); name the files with your surname and the number of the paper (e.g. smith1.doc). If you'd like me to read a draft of your paper before submitting it to be graded, I'll try to do so provided that you send it to me a couple of days before it is due. I grant extensions but may not comment on late papers; if I'm short on time, I only grade them.

Two-thirds of your grade will be based on the papers, and the other third on the quizzes and class participation. The course may only be taken for grades.

If you wish to bring laptop computers, tablets, etc. to class, please send me an email promising to use them only for classwork. I consider using them, while in class, for email, chatting, surfing, etc. a violation of the Caltech honor code.

The easiest way to communicate with me is by email, but I am happy to speak to you in person or on the phone. My office is 208 Dabney, and my extension, 3601.

Recommended Text

The Norton Shakespeare: Based on the Oxford Edition, ed. Stephen Greenblatt, Walter Cohen, Jean E. Howard, and Katharine Eisaman Maus, 3rd. edn. (New York: Norton, 2015).

Most other editions of Shakespeare will be fine, but please bear in mind that texts of his plays can differ considerably. You will need an annotated edition because much of Shakespeare's language, especially in the comedies, will be unfamiliar to you.

Internet Resources

"The Horace Howard Furness Shakespeare Library" (<http://sceti.library.upenn.edu/sceti/furness>) provides facsimiles of Shakespeare's texts and sources and of other pertinent works. The third edition of the Norton Shakespeare has extensive electronic resources.

Writing Matters

Caltech's Hixon Writing Center, located on the north end of the 3rd floor of the Center for Student Services, offers a number of resources that you may find useful for supporting your writing in this class, including tutorial support that allows you to discuss a work-in-progress with a professional or peer tutor. You can learn more about the location of the Hixon Writing Center, how to make an appointment with a tutor, and about their other resources on their website (<http://writing.caltech.edu>).

Plagiarism is a serious offense against the Caltech honor code and against the scholarly community at large; you should become thoroughly familiar with the Hixon Writing Center's "Understanding and Avoiding Plagiarism" (<https://www.writing.caltech.edu/students/plagiarism>).

Collaboration Policy

All academic writers commonly work with others to improve their writing. There are several roles that others might serve for academic writers. Co-authors are the people who help an author create a work by generating original language, developing key ideas, gathering data, or refining methods. As a result, all co-authors' names appear on the final text of the work. Reviewers read and make suggestions toward the improvement of a piece of writing, usually in the form of marginal comments, endnotes, or conversations that explain their impressions of the strengths and limits of the draft. The author is then left to figure out how to make revisions in response to that feedback. Editors differ from reviewers in that they offer much more direction about what must be done to improve a text, and they often will generate specific language that is then incorporated into the text.

For this class your collaboration with others must be limited to reviewing. You should seek out trusted reviewers for your writing, including peers inside the class, friends outside the class, and the tutors in the Hixon Writing Center. Listen critically to their thoughts about your work-in-progress. Decide how useful their feedback seems, and figure out how you will use their comments to improve your work. You cannot, however, ask or allow anyone to co-author or edit your essay; no one but you can generate new language or make decisions about how to reorganize or otherwise change the essay.

You are not allowed to collaborate with professional co-authors, reviewers, or editors outside of Caltech who are remunerated for their work on your writing.

If you find yourself in a gray area, tell me your concerns before submitting your essay so that we can work through them together. If overcollaboration is discovered after the essay is submitted, it will be referred to the Board of Control.
