Requirements and Procedures

Since it is impossible to understand and appreciate a poem without understanding all of the words in it, the first few classes will begin with a quiz about one or more words from the day’s reading. After a couple of weeks, the daily quiz will concern the poems. By noon of the day of each class you must send me by email (gwp@hss.caltech.edu) a word for definition and discussion or a question on a poem. I will choose from your emails for a short quiz, which will take place at the beginning of class. By the end of the course you will have become very familiar with the most important reference work for the study of English literature, the Oxford English Dictionary (https://clsproxy.library.caltech.edu/login?url=http://dictionary.oed.com/entrance.dtl).

You must write three papers, the first two approximately 1,250 words long and the third, approximately 1,500 words long. The first paper is due October 9 at 11:59 pm, the second, November 20 at 11:59 pm, and the third, December 11 at 5 pm. You need to follow the MLA citation style (http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/), although you do not need to use secondary sources. Please send me the papers as email attachments (Microsoft Word, OpenOffice/LibreOffice, or \LaTeX); name the files with your surname and the number of the paper (e.g. smith1.doc). If you’d like me to read a draft of your paper before submitting it to be graded, I’ll try to do so provided that you send it to me a couple of days before it is due. I grant extensions but may not comment on late papers; if I’m short on time, I only grade them.

You must choose a poem from the syllabus, read it aloud, and analyze it in an oral presentation of approximately 10 minutes in the second half of the course.

Two-thirds of your grade will be based on the papers, and the other third on the quizzes and your oral presentation. You must receive a passing grade on all of the papers to pass the class; you may rewrite a failing paper twice.

Please bring the assigned poems to class. If you choose to use texts from the web, please print them out and do not bring laptops, tablets, or smartphones to class.

The easiest way to communicate with me is by email, but I am happy to speak to you in person or on the phone. My office is 208 Dabney, and my extension, 3601.

Required Text

Writing Matters

Caltech’s Hixon Writing Center, located on the north end of the 3rd floor of the Center for Student Services, offers a number of resources that you may find useful for supporting your writing in this class, including tutorial support that allows you to discuss a work-in-progress with a professional or peer tutor. You can learn more about the location of the Hixon Writing Center, how to make an appointment with a tutor, and about their other resources on their website (http://writing.caltech.edu).

Plagiarism is a serious offense against the Caltech honor code and against the scholarly community at large; you should become thoroughly familiar with the Hixon Writing Center’s “Understanding and Avoiding Plagiarism” (https://www.writing.caltech.edu/students/plagiarism).

Collaboration Policy

All academic writers commonly work with others to improve their writing. There are several roles that others might serve for academic writers. Co-authors are the people who help an author create a work by generating original language, developing key ideas, gathering data, or refining methods. As a result, all co-authors’ names appear on the final text of the work. Reviewers read and make suggestions toward the improvement of a piece of writing, usually in the form of marginal comments, endnotes, or conversations that explain their impressions of the strengths and limits of the draft. The author is then left to figure out how to make revisions in response to that feedback. Editors differ from reviewers in that they offer much more direction about what must be done to improve a text, and they often will generate specific language that is then incorporated into the text.

For this class your collaboration with others must be limited to reviewing. You should seek out trusted reviewers for your writing, including peers inside the class, friends outside the class, and the tutors in the Hixon Writing Center. Listen critically to their thoughts about your work-in-progress. Decide how useful their feedback seems, and figure out how you will use their comments to improve your work. You cannot, however, ask or allow anyone to co-author or edit your essay; no one but you can generate new language or make decisions about how to reorganize or otherwise change the essay.

You are not allowed to collaborate with professional co-authors, reviewers, or editors outside of Caltech who are remunerated for their work on your writing.

If you find yourself in a gray area, tell me your concerns before submitting your essay so that we can work through them together. If overcollaboration is discovered after the essay is submitted, it will be referred to the Board of Control.
Schedule

October 6 William Shakespeare, Sonnets 1–3, 12, 15, 18, 20, 29, 30, 33, 35, 55, 60, 65, 71

October 20 John Donne, “Elegy XIX”; Aphra Behn, “The Disappointment”; John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, “The Disabled Debauchee,” “The Imperfect Enjoyment.” (Some of these poems are X-rated, and if you feel uncomfortable discussing them in class, don’t feel obligated to come.)

November 5 Robert Browning, “My Last Duchess”; Alfred Tennyson, “Ulysses”; Richard Howard, “Nikolaus Mardruz to his Master Ferdinand, Count of Tyrol, 1565.”

November 12 Emily Dickinson 479, 533, 588, 591, 620, 740, 764, 781, 782, 788, 895, 905, 935, 1096, 1108, 1263, 1489, 1577, 1793, 1788.

December  1  James Joyce, “Are You Not Weary of Ardent Ways” (pdf); William Empson, “Villanelle” (pdf); Dylan Thomas, “Do Not Go Gentle into That Good Night”; Elizabeth Bishop, “One Art.”